English:

This week we have been started reading a brilliant story called Stone Age Boy. We have acted out Stone Age Boy when he meets a strange girl called Om, and discussed their feelings of confusion.

Maths:

We have been learning to use Base 10 when representing the value of digits in numbers up to 1000.

The biggest news from this week is that our ipads have finally arrived. The children have learned how to log on to Purple Mash, have set up their log on details for the ipad, and have created an avatar. They still have some more lessons about the ipads before they can take them home.

If you have not returned the user agreement, please do so as soon as possible, so that your child can bring their ipad home.

A letter went out about a Stone age experience that we are bringing to the school. Including the coach, it would be very expensive to travel to the site, so the archaeologists have kindly agreed to bring their artefacts into school and run workshops with the children, which has brought the cost down below £10.00.

If you have not received the letter with all of the information on, please let your child's teacher know on Dojo.

This week, we have rewarded lots of good marks for the new competencies that children should be focusing on in school. These include teamwork, cooperation, honesty and creativity. We shall be announcing weekly winners who will receive a prize, such as an additional playtime. Dojo's have been awarded for work.

Just a reminder not to send your child into school if they have a new cough or temperature, and to get them a pcr test. If your child is feeling poorly, with other symptoms, please err on the side of caution. Lateral flow tests can identify coronavirus in those who don't have symptoms.
